
GODLOVE MIKEL

(United Empire Loyalist)

Historical Notes Concerning
One of the Old Log Cabin Families

“Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.”

IN THE preparation of a family record such as this one the difficulties encountered are many, and it is inevitable that there should be "errors or omissions." The blank pages in the book can be used by the different branches to list corrections and insert missing names.

HISTORICAL NOTES

Concerning

Godlove Mikel

United Empire Loyalist

MONUMENT

At graves of late Godlove Mikel and his wife—Albury Cemetery, Township of Ameliasburg, County of Prince Edward.

The name Mikel has been spelled differently at different times and in different countries. Sometimes with an "i," sometimes with a "y." In France it is frequently spelled with a "ch" instead of a "k" (the "i" having the sound of the English letter "e" as in Peter). It is also frequently spelled Michael. It is probably one of the oldest names known. Some dictionaries give the meaning of the word as "being near to God," doubtless from the fact that the Archangel bore that name. On the continent in the territories that now form the German Empire, it was sometimes spelled Muegel and pronounced much the same as the French name Michel referred to above.

It is believed that the family of which Godlove Mikel was a member was of French Huguenot origin, the Huguenots having been driven out of France during the religious troubles in that country in the early part of the 17th century. Many of the Huguenots passed into the territory of the German states that now form the German Empire and later came to England. In an attack by the British on Nova Scotia (then belonging to France) by Captain Kirk, we find a Captain Michel a fellow officer of Kirk's, who was in command of a British vessel. This Captain Michel, also Kirk, were Huguenots expelled from France.

There is no doubt that the Mikel family after being expelled from France remained a time in the German states, from which they later emigrated to the colony of New York when it belonged to the British.

When the Revolutionary War, 1776-1783, was in progress, Godlove Mikel joined the British forces as a member of the Royal Regiment of New York, his name then being spelled in the German form. After the close of this war he, with other British Loyalists, came to what is now Canada, first to Lennox County, later settling in the Township of Ameliasburg in the County of Prince Edward, where he remained until his death, his body being buried in the old Albury cemetery in the westerly portion of the Township overlooking the Bay of Quinte. He was born in 1758 and died in 1830. His wife, Elizabeth Lott, also of U. E. Loyalist descent, died in 1831 and is buried by his side. At the time of the burials wooden monuments with inscriptions painted upon them were placed at the graves. As these were crumbling away, the late W. Y. Mikel, a grandson, procured small marble markers for each of the graves and had them placed in position. A few years ago, as the sod was obscuring these, a number of descendants procured and placed at the graves a small granite monument, an illustration of which appears in this book.

It may be said of the Loyalists that they broke the ties of friendship and family, because families were divided in the revolutionary war, some members taking the side of Great Britain while other members of the same family took the side of the revolutionists. The Loyalists gave up comfortable homes, fought through this seven years' war, forsook opportunities for advancement in the new republic with its churches, schools, medical practitioners, and other advantages and came to what is now Canada when it was a wilderness. They did not come here for increased wages, but because of their adherence to a principle, just to be British.

U. E. L. MONUMENT, BELLEVILLE

The corner stone of this monument was laid at Belleville, June 17, 1924, by the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, A.F.&A.M. After completion the monument was unveiled on September 8th, 1924, by the then Lieut. Governor of the Province of Ontario, his honor Col. Henry Cockshutt.

Whether one agrees with their choice or not it must be admitted by all that the Loyalists acted a noble, unselfish part. The Loyalists, as well as those who took the side of the Revolution, desired local self-government for the colonies. The Loyalists were willing to wait and continue the agitation for local self government, but the others refused to delay longer and started the Revolutionary War. As late as 1775 the Continental Congress at Philadelphia declared in petitions to the British Government that the colonies did not desire separation from the Empire, but simply redress of grievances and advantages of local self-government within the Empire.

It is true, of course, that some were persistent in a desire for separation. When the Continental Congress met in Philadelphia in June, 1776, Dr. Ryerson in his History tells us that the vote on the question of separation was a tie in the congress, which adjourned to the 4th of July, when the tie was broken by the vote of one man who had been absent from the June sittings on account of illness. After this vote was carried by one majority the motion for separation was then made unanimous according to a plan formerly adopted, that motions approved should be considered as unanimously approved. Even after the Declaration of Independence and after the close of the War there were prominent persons in the New Republic who changed their minds and felt that they had made a mistake in separating from the British Empire.

General Israel Putnam in a letter bearing date May 14, 1783, written to Colonel Robinson in Canada, writes

HON. HENRY COCKSHUTT

His honor Col. Henry Cockshutt of Brantford who, when Lieut. Governor, unveiled the U.E.L. monument at Belleville, Sept. 8, 1924, when W. C. Mikel, K.C., was mayor.

as follows: "Whenever I think seriously upon the situation of this country I cannot but bewail my folly in the part which I have acted. There was a time when I firmly believed that a separation from the Mother Country would be the greatest blessing to us. But alas, experience—too late experience—has convinced me as well as thousands of others how very erroneous this opinion was." ("Life of Sir John Beverly Robinson" page 14.) General Putnam was one of Washington's most able and famous generals and one of the most bitter antagonists to the British during the Revolutionary War.

The Revolutionary War was settled by the Treaty of Paris, Sept. 3, 1783, which contains the following clauses:

Clause 4: "It is agreed that creditors on either side shall meet with no lawful impediment to the recovery of the full value, in sterling money, of all bona fide debts heretofore contracted."

Clause 5: "And it is agreed that all persons who have any interest in confiscated lands, either by debts, marriage settlements or otherwise, shall meet with no lawful impediment in the prosecution of their just rights . . ."

The Loyalists were denied the right to obtain their lands. The result is that lands which today would be worth probably over a billion dollars were lost to the Loyalists. They were also prevented in many instances after the war from recovering debts owing to them in the new republic, which had been contracted before or during the war. However, the British authorities did not allow the Loyalists to suffer. An order-in-council was passed at Quebec on the 9th of November, 1789, when Lord Dorchester was Governor-General, under which those Loyalists who attended before the Land Boards and proved their claim, received grants of lands. Of course the difficulties of travel in those days were so great that many Loyalists found it practically impossible to present and prove their claims. It has been estimated that some 40,000 Loyalists came to what is now Canada after the close of the American Revolutionary War, but only about 7,000 attended before the Land Boards to obtain grants, the remaining Loyalists receiving their grants as the result of application made direct to the government. The British Government appointed a Royal Commission to hear evidence as to claims made by the Loyalists for losses during the Revolutionary War. As this Commission sat only in London, Eng., Halifax and Montreal, most of the Loyalists were unable to incur the expense and burden of travel necessary to attend and bring witnesses to prove their respective claims. Only the very wealthy Loyalists could take advantages of the provisions of the Royal Commission.

It has been said that those who do not look back with pride to their ancestors do not look forward with gratification to posterity. The descendants of Godlove Mikel may well be proud of him.

He was loyal and patriotic. The fact that he possessed a large Bible, which is shown in an illustration in this book, establishes his reverence for religion. A bible of this size in those days must have cost considerable money and at a time when money was much scarcer than it has been since. That he was industrious and business-like is shown by the contents of his will, a copy of which appears in this book.

His descendants should continue to remember such a man. His son Daniel married Sarah Pierce, who was a daughter of Hannah Conklin and her husband. Both the Pierce and Conklin families were also Loyalists of the American Revolution, and came to this country after the close of the war and registered under the Land Board for lands.

The United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada was incorporated on the 27th of May, 1914, by Chapter 146 of the Statutes of the Dominion Parliament, the object being to unite together irrespective of creed or political party the descendants of those families who, during the American Revolutionary War of 1776-1783, sacrificed their homes in retaining their loyalty to the British Crown, and to perpetuate this spirit of loyalty to the Empire.

W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville, is a life member of this Association and has been Vice-President of the Association. He is also president of the Quinte U. E. Loyalists Society, an organization that was started soon after the arrival of the Loyalists in the Quinte District. The early records of the Quinte U. E. Loyalists Society have not been preserved, but were lost.

Records show that large sums of money deposited in banks, in court, and in other institutions, are unclaimed. Land is also at times unclaimed. The result is a serious loss to families. A careful record of family history would often prevent these losses. Many persons do not know the full names of their four grandparents. Some do not know the full names of their own parents, and few persons know the full names of their great grandparents. This makes it difficult to prove descent and establish title. Sometimes the information contained in this book may enable you to establish your title to money or other property, or save you time and expense in doing so.

It is sometimes said that the Loyalists of the American Revolution of which Godlove Mikel was one, did not favour constitutional government. This is shown to be incorrect by the fact that very shortly after the Loyalists came to Canada they procured the passage of the Constitution Act by the British Parliament in 1791, which divided Quebec into Upper and Lower Canada and gave a constitutional government to each section. It has sometimes been said that the Loyalists were not as ardent lovers of liberty as the Revolutionary forces in many of the 13 colonies. This is also incorrect, because as early as 1793 the legislature of Upper Canada, which was composed almost entirely of Loyalists, passed an Act providing for the abolition of slavery, while the new republic of the United States did not succeed in abolishing slavery until about 70 years later, and then only after a civil war costing immense sums of money, destruction of property of large value and great loss of life, notwithstanding the fact that the Declaration of Independence stated that all men were born free and equal.

The establishment of religious organizations and the building of churches showed that the Loyalists had a reverence for religion. The Loyalists and their descendants who came into Canada were tenacious warriors, as shown by the fact that the war of 1812, started by the United States of America with the object of capturing Canada, failed. Members of Congress openly stated before this war that the capture of Canada would be an easy matter, and could be done with a few soldiers headed by a band and a flag. Three principal points of attack were planned by the United States forces, at Detroit, Niagara and Montreal. At Detroit the Canadians under General Brock drove back the United States forces under General Hull, who had a force three times the size of the Canadian forces, captured General Hull and his army and took possession of the whole of Michigan. At Niagara the United States forces under General Van Renssaler were also driven back, and at Montreal there was a similar result. At that time the population of the the United States was greater than the population of Canada by about 20 to 1.

It is, of course, true that large numbers of people of the United States were not in favour of this war and ever since that war there has been peace between Canada and the United States and it is hoped that this peaceful condition will always continue.

The people of Canada and the United States are descended from the people in Europe, who have been at war almost continuously among themselves and elsewhere since 1812. The peaceful relations existing between the people of Canada and the United States might well be a lesson to the people of Europe. The fact that the people of Canada and the United States for the most part speak the same language is no doubt a great contributing factor to peace. If the people in Europe could speak the same language and read the same newspapers and books and pass and repass with the same freedom from one country to another as is done in North America they might enjoy the same happy result.

The following is a list of descendants of Godlove Mikel compiled by Thomas C. Mikel of Consecon. Much effort has been made to avoid errors and omissions. In case any are discovered they could be entered in the blank pages at the back of the book, where subsequent births, marriages and deaths may also be entered so as to keep this list up to date.

THE GODLOVE MIKEL HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

W. C. MIKEL AND OLD FAMILY BIBLE

Godlove Mikel

Residence, 1st Concession of Ameliasburg, Prince Edward County, Province of Ontario. Born 1758. Died October 25th, 1830. Age 72 years, 4 months, 21 days.

His Wife, ELIZABETH LOTT

Born 1760. Died March 15th, 1831. Age 71 years, 1 month, 5 days. Both buried in Albury Cemetery in Township of Ameliasburg. Both United Empire Loyalists. Godlove Mikel was a member of the Royal Regiment of New York British forces during the American Revolutionary War (1776-1783) and came to Canada after the close of the war, first to Lennox County, later to the Township of Ameliasburg in the County of Prince Edward where he settled on Lot 96 in the First Concession of that Township, residing there until his death. In the Archives Department at Ottawa the books containing a reference to grants of land to the Loyalists of the American Revolution show a grant to Godlove Mikel of Lot 96 in the First Concession of Ameliasburg and Sophiasburg, July 10, 1801. (These two townships were at that time united.) The above mentioned lot is the lot upon which Godlove Mikel resided until his death. The entry contains after the name the letters R. R. N. Y., these letters show that Godlove Mikel was a member of the Royal Regiment of New York during the Revolutionary War. The list of members of the regiment contained in Dr. Canniff's History also contains the name of Godlove Mikel. The name is spelt somewhat differently from the present spelling but, as mentioned elsewhere, the spelling of the names of many of the early settlers has undergone change. The identity of Godlove Mikel, however, is clearly fixed by the number of the lot on which he resided until his death.
